Pizza shop employee attacked

CRIME A Dartmouth pizza shop worker ended up in hospital early yesterday morning after being attacked by three people brandishing a metal pipe and what police believe was bear spray.

Halifax Regional Police said the two female suspects and one male suspect who walked into the fast food restaurant on the 100 block of Highfield Park Drive at about 12:45 a.m. "are known to the victim," adding it doesn't appear that robbery was the motive behind the assault.

The employee sustained injuries that were not life-threatening when he was sprayed with the substance and hit with the metal pipe, police said.

RAIL Via Rail trains across the county started getting back on track yesterday, with full service on most routes expected to resume today, including in Halifax.

Service came to a halt at 1 p.m. AT on Friday when locomotive engineers and yardmasters started walking the picket lines. After two days of striking, the union representing about 340 workers across the country and the company announced that they've agreed to binding arbitration.

"Teamsters Canada Rail Conference and the Via Rail Canada ... agreed very late (Saturday) night to appeal to a federal arbitrator who will impose a new collective agreement to both parties," a statement on the union's national website said.

Although no trains were leaving or arriving in Halifax yesterday, the overnight Ocean train was scheduled to leave Montreal for Halifax at 7:30 p.m. AT last night and should arrive here just before 4:30 p.m. today.

The Ocean is scheduled to leave Halifax at 12:35 p.m. today, according to the Via Rail website, but customers should check viarail.ca or call 1-888-842-7245 for updated information.

The Teamsters Canada website said outstanding contract issues could be addressed as early as mid-August.

Parents face charge

Two 23-year-old Halifax parents have been charged with aggravated assault in a suspected case of child abuse involving their seven-week-old daughter, something that Halifax Regional Police spokeswoman Theresa Rath calls "troubling and shocking."

Police say the baby has sustained life-threatening injuries.

The mother and father were charged with one count each of aggravated assault on Saturday. They have been remanded until their next scheduled court appearance on Wednesday.

"This is certainly something that stands out," Rath said yesterday. "This is very troubling and shocking for police because we're talking about a defenceless baby who is seven weeks old."

According to Rath, at about 8:20 p.m. Thursday, the parents made a 9-1-1 call in regards to an injured person, who was their baby. Paramedics arrived at the scene and asked for police backup because, according to Rath, "they were concerned about the situation."

The child was then taken to the IWK Health Centre in Halifax, and police were told their involvement wasn't required.

But Rath said police were re-contacted by concerned hospital staff early Friday morning. That started a police investigation, which led to both parents being arrested at their Halifax residence later in the day.

"We can't get into the injuries (because) it is now a matter before the courts, but what I can tell you is we laid a charge of aggravated assault, and that is the most serious assault charge you can lay under the Criminal Code of Canada," Rath said.

"If you look at the definition, it involves wounding, maiming or disfiguring, so that will give you a sense of the extent of the injuries."

Rath said neither parent has a criminal history.

If the baby's condition worsens and she dies, police could upgrade the charges, Rath said.

Halifax Pride Parade focuses on sense of community and respect

HILARY BEAUMONT

Pride, Respect, Community were the rainbow words pronounced on the side of a float during the Halifax Pride Parade Saturday afternoon.

Pridesters on the float also sang Put a Little Love in Your Heart to hundreds of people lining the sunny curbs to watch in the downtown core.

Participants and spectators — queer and straight — wore rainbow flags during the parade to demonstrate their pride for a culture as well as a sexual spectrum.

For Sandra Bornemann, who held hands with her transgendered husband Julien Davis, Pride represents much more than sexuality. "It's about visibility as well, because in the LGBT (lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgendered) community, the T is often invisible," Bornemann said. "We're showing that it's not so invisible."

The first Halifax Pride Parade in 1988 was more of a protest, said Kevin Kindred, spokesman for the Nova Scotia Rainbow Action Project.

"There were about 25 people that took part, some of whom took part with bags over their heads so no one would recognize who they are," he said.

And while Saturday's parade participants wore smiles, Kindred said there are still important battles ahead.

"There's a lot of homophobia that people experience at vulnerable times in their lives — when they're getting health care, when they're older," he said. "The new face of the movement will try to eliminate homophobia in a way that has nothing to do with the

Hyde inquiry takes week off

PHILIP CROUCHER
philip.croucher@metronews.ca

HIATUS The fatal inquiry into the death of Howard Hyde is taking a week off, with testimony resuming Tuesday, Aug. 4.

For the last three weeks, Judge Anne Derrick has been presiding over the inquiry that is looking into the death of Hyde, a 45-year-old who was Tasered by Halifax Regional Police and died 30 hours later during a struggle with guards at the Burnside jail.

Hyde's death came after he was arrested and charged with assaulting his common-law wife on Nov. 22, 2007. Hyde suffered from schizophrenia and was off his medication when the incident took place.

Staff Sgt. Sean Auld, on lawyer's claim

During Friday's testimony, HRP Staff Sgt. Sean Auld denied a claim by Hyde family lawyer Kevin MacDonald that he pressured hospital staff to release Hyde after he was Tasered multiple times by police. After struggling with police and getting Tasered, Hyde's heart stopped beating and was taken to hospital.

"I'm offended by that, actually," Auld is quoted as saying during the inquiry by the CBC. "I, in no way, put any pressure on that staff member."

Police kept on their toes during spate of early morning robberies

KRISTEN LIPSCOMBE
kristen.lipscombe@metronews.ca

CRIME Halifax Regional Police had their hands full early yesterday, with five robberies in less than three hours on both sides of the harbour.

"Police had a busy night," police spokesman Staff Sgt. Sean Auld said.

The first robbery occurred in the Woodside area of Dartmouth at 12:05 a.m., police said, when two females assaulted two other females who were waiting for the bus on Pleasant Street near Crawford Street, snatching their purses before taking off. Police said the 16-year-old and 17-year-old victims knew their attackers.

The second robbery happened a few minutes later as a restaurant on Halifax's Kempt Road was closing. Police said four suspects, described as "light-skinned black males," told staff to get on the floor, one armed with a knife and another wielding a handgun.

The assailants allegedly hit one employee in the head and grabbed some cash before running away, according to police.

The following three incidents all happened within less than an hour of each other, starting with a 25-year-old man who was walking in an Upper Water Street parking garage in downtown Halifax at 2:10 a.m. Police said he was with a male he had met earlier in the evening, who ended up stealing his chain after a struggle.

Then, just after 2:20 a.m. in Dartmouth, a male armed with a handgun stole some cash from a 27-year-old man who was walking on Primrose Street, police said.

The victim described the suspect as a black male with "big arms covered in tattoos."

The final robbery was also in Dartmouth at 3 a.m., when a group of black teenage boys assaulted a male victim walking along Boland Road, grabbing his wallet before taking off.

Province sees first swine flu victim

Health official confirms elderly woman died with severe case of disease

Flu Outbreak

PAUL MCLEOD
paul.mcleod@metronews.ca

For the first time, a Nova Scotian has died from influenza A (H1N1), also known as swine flu.

The victim's name was not released, but provincial health officials say a woman in her 50s who had underlying health issues passed away Friday morning.

Several media reports identified the woman as Annette Sampson, who worked looking after the elderly at a nursing home in St. Peters, Cape Breton.

Health officials say the victim was admitted to hospital about two weeks earlier with a severe case of swine flu, but don't know how much of a factor pre-existing health issues played in her death.

"This is not unexpected. We anticipated seeing severe cases and deaths and we anticipate that this will continue," said Nova Scotia's chief medical officer Dr. Robert Strang. "This sad event is a reminder to all of us the H1N1 pandemic in Nova Scotia is very serious and the outbreak is not over."

Strang said the circumstances are not unusual for a death linked to influenza. He said medical staff continues to monitor the illness and the new death will not change how they handle the disease.

"Unfortunately deaths linked to influenza are both common and expected each year," Strang said. "About 4,000 Canadians have died with various strains of seasonal influenza."

As of Friday, there have been 456 lab-confirmed cases of H1N1 but Strang said there are "many, many more." So far the disease has acted like a normal seasonal flu in Nova Scotia and only 10 people have been hospitalized.

Strang emphasized prevention by washing hands early and often, sneezing into the arm and frequently cleaning common surfaces such as doorknobs.

"One of the most important steps is staying home if you have flu-like symptoms," he said.

"If you have those symptoms, please stay home for seven days. I can't stress this enough."

Georges Bank drilling study begins soon

paul.mcleod@metronews.ca

RESEARCH Petroleum projects have been banned at Georges Bank in Halifax for over 20 years, but the federal and provincial governments must now decide next year if it wants to extend the moratorium.

The research on whether to do so begins soon, with the Offshore Energy Environmental Research Association about to send out two requests for proposals to study the area. In 1999 the Georges Bank Review Panel recommended keeping the area shut off to petroleum drilling and exploration until the end of 2012. The provincial and federal governments agreed.

One of the new RFPs will examine that decision and how it is understood in contrast to today's scientific knowledge. The other study will look into how technology has changed since 1999 and what impact that could have on the area.

"In order to make a good decision, governments will have to depend on the best science and technology information they can," said association executive director Wayne St-Amour.

The association hopes to have its final reports in by Spring of next year. The not for profit research group has received $500,000 from the province to study the issue. The association has also put out a call to the scientific community to send in their input on the subject by the end of August.

Police arrest four youths after pellet shooting

CRIME Halifax Regional Police said they arrested four boys Friday night after a teenage girl was shot twice by a pellet gun in the north end of Halifax.

The attack allegedly happened at about 7:30 p.m. in the parking lot of the Tim Hortons on Lady Hammond Road, police said. Police said the victim, who was with two friends at the time, walked out of the coffee shop to meet up with a group of teenage boys.

"As they walked outside, the female was struck in the head with a pellet," Halifax Regional Police said in a report released Saturday. "She ran to the area of Jenny's Pub and the males followed her. She was struck again with a pellet."

Officers took the boys into custody and seized the pellet gun soon after, police said. METRO HALIFAX

Cpl. Wilcox denies 'quick draw' game

COURT In his own words, Cpl. Matthew Wilcox described how he ascertained a "threat" against him inside his own tent at the Kandahar Airfield base in Afghanistan that led him to draw his pistol from a leg holster and shoot a Canadian soldier in the chest.

It was an "instinctive reaction" to fire, Wilcox told a military courtroom at Victoria Park in Sydney Friday afternoon.

"I hear the slide of a pistol being pulled back and at that point I saw the slide being pulled forward. It was pointed directly at me," he testified.

Facing the front entrance of his tent, Wilcox said the gunman was behind him at a five o'clock position.

"It's hard to describe. I pivot, fall back ... draw the pistol from my holster and I fired a round at the pistol."

"(Megeney's) pistol dropped and he fell. He collapsed and his head hit the barracks box. I ran over to him and yelled for help," he said.

Wilcox, 24, of Glace Bay, is charged with manslaughter, criminal negligence causing death and negligent performance of duty in the death of 25-year-old Megeney.

He refuted the claim made by one of his friends, Master Cpl. Kyle Keigan, during earlier testimony that he and Megeney had been playing a game of "quick draw" when Megeney was shot.

Recession's projected end a boon for Tories

Bank's forecast suggests 'plan is working': Flaherty

If Prime Minister Stephen Harper and his fellow Conservatives look a little relieved this week, they can thank Mark Carney for lifting their spirits — and perhaps their political fortunes.

With his prediction that the recession is nearly over, the Bank of Canada governor served up some welcome good news just in time for this week's Conservative caucus retreat.

His forecast is sure to prompt some back-patting as Harper and his MPs take credit for the emerging turnaround. Finance Minister Jim Flaherty began the

"All of these are good indicators that the plan is working and we're seeing the beginning of economic recovery," Flaherty said, adding that he expects Canada to emerge from the recession stronger than the United States.

Still, the mood of Wednesday's Conservative retreat is unlikely to match the bullish atmosphere of last year's caucus session, when Harper taunted Stéphane Dion, then the Liberal leader, to face him in the polls.

"I think we're probably going to see a caucus meeting that is much more grounded in the sense that the downturn in the economy has really cast a pall over everything ... It represents a significant political risk," pollster Nik Nanos said. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Despite rift, Netanyahu says U.S.-Israeli relations still strong

The United States launched a fresh drive yesterday to restart Middle East peace talks, sending senior officials to the region to deal with issues ranging from Jewish settlements to Iran's nuclear ambitions.

The visits by Middle East envoy George Mitchell, Defense Secretary Robert Gates and National Security Adviser Jim Jones were a strong signal from U.S. President Barack Obama of his intention to keep Israeli-Arab peacemaking high on his agenda.

Obama's demand, in accordance with a 2003 U.S.-backed peace "road map," to freeze Jewish settlement in the occupied West Bank and Arab East Jerusalem has met stiff resistance from Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu.

Head over heels for hope

HineSight

Anne Hines

On a recent morning I hit on a great truth about love. Romantic relationships call into play the two most powerful and overwhelming forces known to human kind. Hope and hormones.

I realized this during a phone conversation with my friend Rob. It went something like this.

Rob: The most amazing thing has happened. Incredible. Stupendous. You won't believe it.

Me: So, those new strawberry-esque doughnuts at Tim Hortons. The best thing ever? Or a wicked plot by Weight Watchers?

Rob: What about my news?

Me: You've met a woman. She's perfect. You're madly in love. You never knew you could feel this way.

Rob: Well ... yeah. Except for the part about ... well ... yeah.

Me: Honey, I worry about your heart.

Rob: You're the one eating doughnuts.

Me: Falling in love makes you irrational.

Rob: Irrational? Not ever. Totally not. Me irrational? What? Huh?

Me: What about that woman with "Elvis Lives" tattooed on her forehead?

Rob: She was very ... optimistic.

Me: And the one who thought pigeons speak to her?

Rob: She'll never feel alone. But this one is different. We've had three whole dates and I haven't once felt like suggesting she'd benefit from lengthy psychotherapy.

Me: What about how you behave? The short list of things you've done for love includes: Bought a ferret, grown your hair, cut your hair, studied "clowning," sworn you love Barry Manilow, sworn you hate Barry Manilow, sworn you love camping — which, if you remember, led to you actually having to go camping, grown your hair again, and worn spandex.

Rob: I liked the spandex. Once I got that chafing under control. Anyway, what about listening to my heart?

Me: I'm afraid you can't hear it over your hormones. Sweetie, why do you want to try this again?

Rob: Because maybe this will be the woman that'll make inane love songs seem like deep, meaningful insight. Maybe she'll be the person who will know me; the good, the bad, the bordering on repellent and still love me like springtime. And maybe I'll do the same for her. What's it worth risking for that?

Me: Truthfully? ... Everything you've got. Just look after yourself, OK?

Rob: What's the worst that can happen?

Me: Remember Raw Food Girl?

Rob: I have to run. We've signed up to take Norwegian country dancing.

Me: Good for you, sweetie. I'm right behind you.

Events help fuel energy around Halifax

UrbanScrawl

Christina Biluk

metronews.ca/urbanscrawl

Congratulations Halifax — you've had an amazing week where you continued to move forward bringing down barriers and improved the way we live, work and play.

In case you missed it, Natasha Prest was sworn in this week as the first female African-Nova Scotian firefighter in the Halifax Regional Municipality.

As well, the Halifax Pride Festival celebrated its 22nd edition and, for the first time, under hallmark status from HRM. This means the festival was formally recognized for its impact on the community's culture and economy, opening a door for funding opportunities to make the festival bigger and better.

In an active July, these two celebrations are just the tip of the success iceberg. They have helped fuel the momentum felt downtown.

In these past few weeks, Halifax has begun to really feel alive. The downtown is bustling with new energy and new ideas. Halifax, you should be proud of these recent accomplishments; and Haligonians you should also be proud of yourselves.

The energy can be felt in conversations in coffee shops and bars, while waiting for the bus, or to get into a concert. It can best be described as passionate individuals sharing their thoughts and dreams.

If you've been part of these conversations, harness your energy, breathe life into your ideas and let them take shape. If you haven't, it's not too late to tap into this energy and challenge yourself.

No journey is ever easy (or short), but everyday Nova Scotians use their energy to fuel their passions and make change. Most of us won't receive an award or formal recognition for our journeys. We do it because of a passion and desire to challenge ourselves and others beyond the status quo. Our journey will change the way we do business, the way we develop our community, and how we interact with others.

This week, I challenge everyone to celebrate a success you've had and one of someone else. The success can be big or small — size doesn't matter — but the celebration must be meaningful.

With every success we celebrate, we are energized to move forward. This energy builds within us and inspires those around us. Movement starts with one person, while momentum carries to many.

Anyone can drive change and help make Halifax a better place to live, work and play, and it all starts with celebrating our successes, following our passions and sharing our energy.

Destruction taking its toll on Earth: Astronaut

A Canadian astronaut aboard the International Space Station said yesterday it looks like Earth's ice caps have melted a bit since he was last in orbit 12 years ago.

Bob Thirsk, who is two months into a planned six-month stay aboard the station, said he is mostly in awe when he looks out the window, particularly at the sliver of atmosphere wrapped around the planet.

"It's a very thin veil of atmosphere around the Earth that keeps us alive," Thirsk said during an in-flight news conference. "Most of the time when I look out the window I'm in awe. But there are some effects of the human destruction of the Earth as well."

"This is probably just a perception, but I just have the feeling that the glaciers are melting, the snow capping the mountains is less than it was 12 years ago when I saw it last time," Thirsk said. "That saddens me a little bit."

If Thirsk needs a sympathetic ear, he has 12 crewmates with him, at least until tomorrow, when visiting shuttle Endeavour astronauts are scheduled to depart.

G8 emissions plan is meaningless

EarthTones

Sophia Dore & Andrew Laursen

metronews.ca/earthtones

Sometimes we can all be pretty gullible. Ever make a major purchase because it was "30 per cent off" or choose a bag of chips because it had "50 per cent more"? More than what? More than a bag with 50 per cent fewer chips? The ads make us feel like savvy shoppers, but without a frame of reference, it's pretty meaningless.

One lesson learned from the recent G8 summit in Italy is that the Chinese, Indians, Brazilians and Mexicans are better shoppers than we are. While G8 countries were hailing the agreement to reduce greenhouse gas emissions 50 per cent by 2050 (80 per cent for developed economies), and to limit global average temperature increases to two degrees over pre-industrial temperatures, these developing economies were asking what it all means.

Like the bag of chips, the agreement lacks meaning as it lacks any frame of reference. A 50 per cent reduction from what year? And what is the baseline for pre-industrial temperature? If we choose 1830s versus 1850s (last minimum of the "Little Ice Age") it makes a major difference. The agreement reached in Italy is not a plan, and without frames of reference it does not set any real goals.

These frames of reference are to be worked out in advance of the December UNFCCC Conference in Copenhagen, but it is disappointing that G8 leaders left Italy without establishing them. While we're at it

Beyond the technology gap

- The economies of China, India, Brazil and Mexico are not built on innovation but rather on taking innovative products and making them less expensively. If we are innovative in designing products that are more efficient, and are innovative in developing new, greener manufacturing technologies, who do you think will adopt those technologies and make those products?

and talking about frames of reference, somebody better verify with the Americans we mean Celsius.

Of course, it's not just that the Chinese, Indians, Brazilians and Mexicans are more cautious shoppers.

Even with benchmarks, it will be difficult to get these countries to buy in to any carbon emission reduction plan. Until recently, that has been a justification for Canada to walk away from its Kyoto Protocol obligations, and for the U.S. to not even ratify Kyoto. But these decisions showed a lack of understanding of our own economy, and have really put the North American market at a disadvantage. Like other G8 countries, the Canadian and American economies are built on innovation. We have let European countries take the risks, hence the lead in green technologies. Adopting stringent carbon reduction targets now will have us playing catch-up for years, but further delays will only broaden the gap.

Further, a more expansive view of our commitment to reduce carbon emissions that includes not only use of products in Canada, but carbon emissions during their manufacture and transportation, will give developing economies incentive to reduce emissions to remain competitive. So far, however, product life cycle goals for carbon emissions remain outside the scope of the major international agreements and conventions. Hopefully, someday they find their place.

Sweden's Ericsson has won an auction for the wireless assets of bankrupt Nortel Networks Corp, paying $1.13 billion for the crown jewels of the one-time Canadian telecom star.

Contador claims Tour

Spaniard wins second title, Armstrong finishes third in comeback

Alberto Contador emerged as the new cycling boss yesterday when the Spaniard wrapped up his second Tour de France title on seven-times champion Lance Armstrong's return to the race.

The 26-year-old Contador stayed safe in the main bunch as the last stage, over 164 km from Montereau Fault-Yonne, went to Briton Mark Cavendish.

"I am really happy. It was an especially difficult Tour for me, but that's why I am enjoying the victory all the more," Contador said on the podium.

Over three weeks, Contador proved the strongest rider in the mountains and in the time trials, beating Luxembourg's Andy Schleck by four minutes 11 seconds. Armstrong, back from 3½ years in retirement, finished third overall 5:24 off the pace.

Schleck, who also took the white jersey for the best under-25 rider, said:

Astana rider Alberto Contador of Spain, centre, celebrates his overall victory on the podium next to second-place Saxo Bank rider Andy Schleck of Luxembourg, left, and third-place Astana rider Lance Armstrong after the final stage of the Tour de France yesterday.

"He (Contador) was the strongest rider. He is the boss of the peloton."

The victory kept the Spanish flag flying high on the Champs-Elysees following triumphs for Oscar Pereiro in 2006, Contador in 2007 and Carlos Sastre last year.

Defending champs adjusting to roster changes

MATTHEW WUEST
matthew.wuest@metronews.ca

Halifax City Pacifico has no problem with the ups and downs of the summer — as long as it ends on a high.

Pacifico got back in the win column on the weekend with a pair of victories, including yesterday's 1-0 triumph over Dartmouth United Super City Windows in Nova Scotia Soccer League Premiership action at Huskies Stadium.

Last year's Canadian senior women's soccer champions had lost two of their past four games, but still have a 9-4 overall record and sit second in the league standings.

"We've lost a few games but I always think it's good to lose a few games during the regular season," City's Katie Prowse said. "When we've played well, we've come out with wins, so it's been a good summer overall so far."

Prowse, a former Golden Boot winner, was the game's lone scorer yesterday with her fifth of the year, while Robyn Homans recorded her fifth clean sheet of the summer.

City has spent the summer adjusting to a number of roster changes. Notably, they've had to deal with the loss of veteran NSSL star and goal-scoring ace Marybeth Bowie.

"It's always a bit of an adjustment when you get new players, but all the girls who have come in have worked really hard and earned their spots," Prowse said. "They're doing great."

Not helping matters is the fact that top goal-scorer, Eunnie Kim, is leaving to join the NCAA Michigan Wolverines next week. But on the flip side, teenaged Lower Sackville star Nkem Ezurike will join the fold after the Canada Games.

"Hopefully it will balance out," Prowse said.

With four games to go, City is hoping to catch Halifax Dunbrack Rooms Plus (10-4-1) for first place and a direct bye to the provincial final.

If not, the club can draw on last year's experience of winning just seven games all summer and still rising to the occasion at provincials and nationals.

"We lost some games last year as well and we won it all," Prowse said.

"Hopefully we can do the same thing again."

Rain pushes Open's end beyond weekend

GOLF Jason Dufner led the Canadian Open leaderboard at the end of play yesterday, but could not collect his maiden PGA Tour win as the weather-battered tournament was forced into a Monday finish.

After three days of torrential rain and thunderstorms, officials had hoped they might dodge the miserable weather long enough to pack in 36 holes and crown the tournament's 100th champion.

But shortly after third-round play began, ferocious storms again rumbled across Glen Abbey forcing another lengthy delay before play was finally suspended.

The last time an entire final round of a PGA Tour event went over to Monday was the 2005 BellSouth Classic and with more stormy weather forecast the prospects of the tournament extending into Tuesday was also on the table.

Mike Weir of Bright's Grove, Ont., recorded a hole-in-one on the par-3 fourth and sits five strokes back of Dufner. REUTERS

Montreal dealt in?

The Montreal Impact have been dealt back in. Or, at least, they're back at the table and may be willing to bet the minimum.

For those who have forgotten the expansion stand-off between Impact owner Joey Saputo and MLS commissioner Don Garber earlier this year, here's a recap: Saputo: We don't want to pay a $40-million expansion fee.

Garber: Well, $40 million is the bet.

It's Called Football

metronews.ca/itscalledfootball

Saputo: I'll bet $31 million. Garber: You, sir, are out of the game.

Saputo: You do know we attracted 55,000 to a soccer game in February? We've spent $15 million on our stadium. And my family makes really good cheese. Garber: All very nice, but $40 million is the minimum.

Saputo: I'm calling your bluff. And with that, Garber had Saputo tossed out of the casino.

Meanwhile, the two other players, Vancouver and Portland, played a few more hands and ended up paying $35 million.

But Saputo is back, money in hand, saying he will pay the $35-million price.

Garber is convinced. The board of governors even discussed the Impact as they met this weekend ahead of Wednesday's all-star game in Utah. It seems MLS is more than willing to put the past behind them.

But will Saputo?

The league invited Saputo to the all-star game, an offer Saputo politely (and insanely) refused because the Impact are playing the night before.

You can do both, Joey. There are 16 Air Canada flights that will get you to Salt Lake City on time. Yes, it'll cost $1,300, but surely that's worth it if it keeps you from pissing off the dealer again.

An announcement on whether the league will offer expansion in 2012 is expected today. However those cards flop, Montreal should play the hand it's dealt because, in the end, the MLS house always wins.

Writing rhythm for the stage

Backstage Pass

JON TATTRIE
for Metro Canada

While the music industry struggles to keep up with the Internet, the technology has made composing for stage and film easier than ever.

From his Halifax base, musician Jason Michael

MacIsaac can work anywhere. "A short jaunt to Toronto replaces three weeks in Toronto," he says over tea in a local café.

He writes scores for plays, films and commercials, and is also in a band called the Heavy Blinkers. "There's not one aspect of my career that allows me my extremely epicurean lifestyle," he jokes, taking a bite out of his peanut-butter bagel.

Usually, a composer's job is to write music that no one notices. "That's a bitter pill to swallow," he says, but he understands that badly timed music can wreck a play. "If you have a pivotal moment when someone says, 'Oh, you didn't know I'm a vampire?' and you don't hear that line, for the rest of the play you're like, 'Why's he sucking blood?'"

That's generally true for films, too. MacIsaac wrote the music for 2003's Touch and Go, which featured a "pre-Allen Page Allen Page," as he puts it.

Earlier this year, he got a chance most stage composers only dream of: He worked on Poor Boy, a pop music fantasia by Halifax's Zuppa Theatre.

"It was a play born out of the music that myself and (collaborator) Dave Christensen created. Every action, every piece of dialogue, was after the music," he smiles. The actors also played the music, presenting further compositional challenges. "You can't be stuck at your cello if you have to go from stage left to stage right in under 10 seconds, so a lot of the arrangement gets stripped down."

That's a common concern: What the composer creates in his head may be too expensive or cumbersome for the play. "It's heartbreaking when a song gets dropped. There's a song in Poor Boy that it kills me every time I don't hear it," he says. "It's 'Look at me, look at me!' Then all of a sudden, it's not about me anymore. I'm at the service of the play."

McMaster University in Ontario, Bishop's University in Quebec and University of Lethbridge in Alberta are among the institutions that offer classes combining music with theatre, film and television. Many musicians either study music and then apply it to stage, or simply learn music on their own.

Tackling love and crime

Finger Lickin' Fifteen

Author: Janet Evanovich
Publisher: St. Martin's Press
Price: $35.95 (Hardcover)

The 15th installment in Janet Evanovich's Stephanie Plum mystery series sees her leading lady try to solve two sets of crimes while balancing her assorted love life and quirky characters she encounters throughout. The lingerie buyer-turned-bounty hunter is on the prowl to discover who killed celebrity chef Stanley Chipotle in a Trenton, N.J., alleyway. Key evidence is companion and sole witness Lula's entrance into the barbecue competition at which Chipotle was poised to appear.

Tomato Rhapsody

Author: Adam Schell
Publisher: Delacorte Press
Price: $28.95 (Hardcover)

In this debut tale of sundry literary inspirations, Adam Schell traces the fantastic fictional account of how the tomato came to Italy. Jewish farmer Davido is given a pass by the village priest to bring the tomato to town, but the fruit quickly becomes a catalyst for controversy. Davido becomes the apple of Catholic Mari's eye, but love appears forbidden, considering her stepfather is overprotective olive mogul and novel villain Giuseppe.

Celebs visit Comic Con

Cameron unveils Avatar footage, Burton previews Alice

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News

The 40th annual San Diego International Comic Con attracted an estimated 125,000 fans of film, TV, video games and comic books for four days of beautiful weather, celebrity sightings and previews of upcoming blockbusters.

While some worried the convention had strayed beyond its comic book roots to become a Hollywood marketing event, fans of all stripes celebrated their favourite pastimes with vigour — and more than a few interesting homemade costumes.

The biggest Hollywood-related draws of the festival were from veteran director

James Cameron, who unveiled 25 minutes of footage from his long-awaited 3-D film, Avatar. Also on display for the first time were toys and concept art related to the film.

But perhaps even more anticipated — and the cause for more controversy — was the panel previewing New Moon, the latest in the Twilight series. Fans of the book and film franchise camped out the day and night before the panel, overtaking the 6,500-capacity Hall H, to the chagrin of fans hoping to attend other panels scheduled the same day.

Another piece of news was word that a sequel to the 1980s hit Tron is in fact on its way, as Jeff Bridges, star of the original, was happy to report. Principal filming has been completed, Bridges confirmed, but was intentionally cagey on plot details.

Tim Burton was on hand to preview his next big film, Alice in Wonderland, and even brought along star Johnny Depp as a surprise. "It's been years since I've been to Comic Con," Burton said. "It's so great to be back."

Usher's ex no gold digger

IN HER DEFENCE Usher's estranged wife isn't a gold digger, insists her friend, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

Friends of Tameka Foster — who has two children, 19-month-old Usher V and eight-month-old Navyd Ely, with the musician — are tired of rumours suggesting the makeup artist only married Usher to get her hands on his fortune.

Nyeisha Dewitt, Foster's best pal, said: "To say that she's a gold digger ... that's just not the case."

"People say that she just had a baby so that she could get paid. Why can't you just be a regular person who has a wonderful job ... and then just fall in love with someone? Then you turn into a gold digger? How does that happen?"

Grieving John having crisis of faith?

FALLOUT Friends of John Travolta are concerned for the reclusive star's health. The actor has been taking midnight drives in a golf cart alone across his Jumbolair estate in Florida, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

He is said to be unable to sleep, grief-stricken over the recent death of his teenaged son, Jett.

The late-night drives are a regular occurrence, according to one local resident.

A neighbour said: "We often see John driving himself around at night.

It's sad to see. You rarely catch sight of him during the day. We used to see him driving around on a buggy with his son. Now it's just John by himself."

Jett died after suffering a seizure while on a family holiday in the Bahamas in January.

Since the tragedy, Travolta has admitted Jett was suffering from autism, going against Scien-tology, which does not acknowledge autism as a medical condition.

After his death, it was claimed Jett may not have been taking conventional medication for the condition, but rather detox programs and vitamins.

It is also rumoured Travolta is thinking of leaving the religion after 35 years, because his faith has been so "deeply shaken" by his son's death.

If the star — who has donated millions of dollars to the religion — does leave, the church is likely to react badly, according to Rick Ross, an author and lecturer on Scientology.

"(The church) has proven in the past that it has a penchant for releasing that information to embarrass people who have left and who have said things it doesn't like. That's why I think Travolta will want to keep his problems with the Church private." METRO NEWS SERVICES

LeAnn's marriage over amid affair rumours

BREAKUP LeAnn Rimes opened up about relationships gone wrong during her performance at the Deer Valley Music Festival in Utah Saturday night, usmagazine.com reports.

"It is inevitable that sometimes in a relationship, you will have your heart broken," said the singer, who is separated from her husband of seven years, Dean Sheremet. "Sometimes you don't do anything, but sometimes you want revenge. Sometimes you don't, and that's when you just leave it in God's hands."

Rimes, 26, was not wearing her wedding ring on stage.

On Saturday, a source told Us that Rimes and Sheremet are "leading separate lives ... but still in each other's lives as best friends. They are not divorcing yet, but working through things and taking time apart ... while they figure things out."

Kate coming to terms with split

BIG STEP As her estranged husband Jon Gosselin gallivants around New York City and the Hamptons with other women, Kate Gosselin has taken a more subtle step toward a new life: She's removed her wedding band, people.com reports.

The reality star was photographed Friday for the first time without her ring during a coffee run near her Pennsylvania home.

Just last month, removing the ring seemed like a symbolic gesture that she was not yet ready to make.

"I haven't taken off my ring," she told People at the time. "It would devastate my kids. It's not necessary. I was looking at it while I was in the shower this morning, and I thought, I'm not taking it off. I'm not ready."

Ready or not, Jon has made it clear he's prepared to move ahead into single life after a decade of marriage. He went to Saint-Tropez with his new 22-year-old girlfriend, Hailey Glassman, rented a bachelor pad in Manhattan, and then holed up at Michael Lohan's house in Long Island with a tabloid reporter. METRO NEWS SERVICES

Vanessa settles into new home

GROWING UP Vanessa Hudgens appreciates a clean house after becoming a homeowner, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The actress recently moved into a six-bedroom, $2.75-million US mansion and is beginning to realize how difficult she made life for her mother.

She said: "There is a struggle to keep the place clean. I'm always in my kitchen scrubbing down the counters and doing the dishes."

The 20-year-old said this about living alone: "All my friends are scared for me. And of course I can tell my parents panic a little."

"The best thing about living alone is being able to have my friends come over whenever."

Lindsay eyes sweet venture

PROSPECT Lindsay Lohan wants to design candies with Sugar Factory, a firm that manufactures "couteur lollipops," femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The 23-year-old star has been regularly pictured sucking on lollipops, and a source says she uses them to stop from returning to her vines.

Metro Recipe of the Day

Four Seasons Pizza

INGREDIENTS:

PIZZA DOUGH

- 2 1/2 cups (625 ml) white bread or plain flour
7 g sachet dried yeast
1/4 tsp (1 ml) salt
2 tbsp (25 ml) olive oil
Between 1/4 and 1 cup (about 200 ml) tepid water

TOPPINGS

- 5 oz (150 g) baby leeks, trimmed and sliced
4 oz (125 g) mushrooms, sliced
1 tbsp (15 ml) white wine vinegar
4 large grilled red pepper pieces, drained and thickly sliced
2/3 cup (150 ml) canned artichoke hearts, drained and quartered
1 garlic clove, finely chopped
2/3 cup (150 ml) tomato paste
1 tbsp (15 ml) tapenade
1 oz (50 g) prosciutto, thinly sliced
1/4 cup (50 ml) pitted black olives, sliced
1/2 cup (125 ml) semi-dried tomatoes, chopped
1/2 cup (125 ml) grated mozzarella cheese
A few fresh sprigs of oregano

METHOD:

1. Mix flour, yeast and salt in large bowl. Make well in centre and stir in olive oil with enough tepid water to make smooth dough. Turn dough out onto lightly floured surface and knead five minutes until smooth and elastic. Place dough back in rinsed-out and lightly oiled bowl, then cover with damp dishcloth or oiled plastic wrap and leave in warm place for 1 hour or until doubled in size.
2. Meanwhile, preheat oven to 400°F (200°C) and prepare

- toppings. Put leeks in pot with mushrooms and vinegar, cover and cook on high heat 3–4 minutes, shaking pot occasionally, until softened. Mix peppers with artichokes. Mix garlic into tomato paste.
3. Turn out risen dough onto lightly floured surface and knead lightly, then roll out or press out with knuckles to about 12in. (30–32 cm) round on lightly greased baking tray.
4. Spread tomato paste mixture evenly over pizza base, then pile leeks and mushrooms over one-quarter of dough and peppers and artichokes over second quarter. Over third quarter, dot tapenade and scrunch prosciutto on top. Spread olives and tomatoes over last quarter. Sprinkle cheese over whole pizza.
5. Bake pizza 30 minutes until golden around edges and lightly browned on top. Scatter some sprigs of oregano over pizza, cut into slices and serve piping hot.
